Waikiki's only oceanfront dinner and show is a culinary and sensory celebration, commemorating Hawaiian culture and transforming the traditional island experience in grand Royal Hawaiian style.

"Before 'luaus' there were 'aha 'aina—a feast of food, mele (song) and hula," says General Manager Kelly Hoen. "In ancient times the Hawaiian people came together to celebrate momentous occasions, these gatherings were called aha 'aina (which translates to gathering for a meal). The Royal Hawaiian is located on sacred grounds and we have created a modern, yet timeless aha 'aina to honor the land's majestic history through food, song, stories, hula, and culture—a true celebration of The Royal and its heritage."

Held at The Royal Hawaiian's Ocean Lawn with the breathtaking backdrop of Waikiki Beach and Diamond Head, the 'aha 'aina is composed of three spectacular acts. As guests enter the aha 'aina grounds, the evening captures the spirit of traditional Hawaii with time-honored activities such as kapa-making (cloth made of pounded bark), poi-pounding, and na lawai'a (tending of fishing tools). The night continues with the sound of a pu (conch) calling guests to feast, where a storyteller shares the significance of lei giving, the ocean, and taro while guests dine on exquisite pupu (hors d'oeuvres). After dinner, the Helumoa story unfolds—a dramatic performance, including hula and song, commemorates ancient islanders' rich history and culture through a timeline of the historic Royal Hawaiian to the contemporary style of Hawaiian music and dance.

Ocean Voyaging: The Hawaiian Islands are the most isolated group of islands in the world. Using only the stars, the ancient Hawaiians traveled to and populated these islands about 1000 years ago.

The tour goes into the beautiful Kaneohe Bay aboard a very comfortable 49 passenger catamaran past the famous Mokolii`i Island (Chinaman's Hat) and Hokule`a Beach, the ceremonial home of the first modern replica of an ancient sailing canoe. *Ocean Voyaging does not operate on Sundays and Federal Holidays

OTHER ACTIVITIES

The Hawaiian Fishpond and Garden Tour explores different facets of this rich history by going through fields of tropical flowers, fruit trees and gardens before venturing out on Moli`i Fishpond.
